

INVEST IN YOUR FUTURE

A.I. TODAY!

Shortening your calving season provides a better opportunity for improved management and observation of your cow herd, resulting in fewer losses at calving.

Shortened calving periods facilitate improvements in herd health and management, such as uniformity in timing of vaccinations and routine management practices resulting in decreased labor requirements.

Cow nutrition can be improved by grouping cows according to stage of gestation and feeding each group accordingly.

Your calf crop will be more uniform in age and size, leading to more advantages in the marketplace.

Plus, you can use the best bulls in the world at affordable prices while working with some of the most talented, friendly and professional people in the business.
